

TRANSPORTATION ON THE SAANICH PENINSULA AT THE END OF THE 19TH C/BEGINNING OF THE 20TH C.

Today, most people travel by car and use walking/bicycles for short distances. But circa 100 years ago that was not the case.

Roads were dirt tracks and, in the winter, wet and muddy. Cars were almost non-existent here in British Columbia and there were no sidewalks – though the town of Sidney had “boardwalks”.

So how did people get from one place to another?
